In collaboration with the National Fish and Wildlife Foundation, the Western Nevada College Specialty Crop Institute is working with local farmers and ranchers to reduce and make efficient use of water in the Walker, Truckee, and Carson Basin valleys while supporting local agriculture through partnerships, demonstration projects, and community involvement.

This project works on a regional level to develop water-efficient, signature Nevada crops; provide training and support to producers; develop reliable wholesale and retail markets and distribution networks; and to promote and increase awareness of Nevada agriculture and its economic and health benefits.

To help achieve these goals in the Walker River basin, a competitive grant process will award funds for producer projects that enhance the goals of the main project. Each application will be carefully reviewed and evaluated based on the criteria listed in the application. Projects will be scored by a grant review committee according to their project and budget feasibility. Projects of $1,000 to $7,500 will be accepted and reviewed for selection. The Program Manager may increase or decrease the requested amounts based on program needs and availability of funds.
