ARTS

Go "Sight Seeing" in Main Gallery

"Sight Seeing," a Lynne Haagensen collection of Montreal imagery, will be on display in the Main Gallery at WNCC Carson City through Friday, Feb. 16. In fall 2000, Haagensen spent six weeks exploring the Canadian city and making drawings, knowing that she would later have the opportunity to use them in photocopy prints.

Haagensen developed her drawings into fine art prints at the Xerox Palo Alto Research Center in California, where she was an artist-in-residence. After a period of making art based on other subjects, she returned to her Montreal imagery and created the works in this exhibition.

"Print is Print" Promotes Safer Printmaking

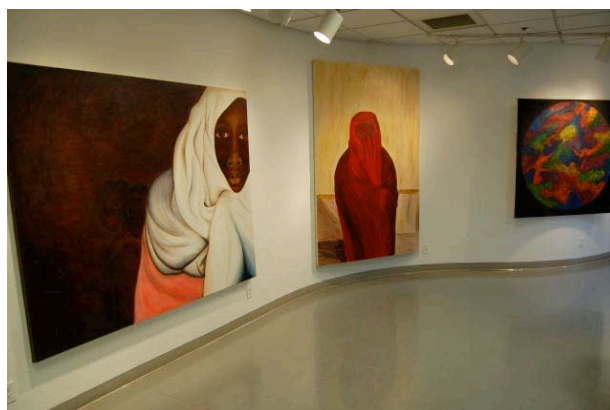

"Print is Print," an international exchange portfolio of non-toxic prints, will hang in the College Gallery at WNCC Carson City through Friday, Feb. 16. This purpose of this exhibit, representing the work of 20 different artists from seven countries, is to expand the dialog for safer printmaking practices.

In "Print is Print," all of the artists have adopted contemporary, safer printmaking methods in place of traditional, more toxic processes. Processes employed include polyester plate lithography, water-based silkscreen, etching using ferric chloride in place of the more toxic nitric acid, prints using ImageOn film, and prints produced using a combination of these methods.

Wildcats Post Winning Scores in the Classroom

Getting A's and B's in the classroom can be just as important to a WNCC student athlete as scoring a goal or hitting a home run. Last fall, the WNCC women's soccer team netted an overall grade point average of 3.04 and the men's baseball team posted a combined 3.03, out of a possible 4.0.
